About this boat

The Columbia 57 is a striking example of a true ocean-going classic, designed in 1976 by the renowned naval architect Bill Tripp Sr. Built with a solid fiberglass displacement hull, semi-long keel, and lead ballast, she was conceived for safe, confident passagemaking in all conditions. Her elegant profile, cutter rig configuration, and powerful sail plan make her both capable and graceful under sail, while the upgraded mast and renewed rigging ensure dependable performance for extended cruising. With generous dimensions and a strong, proven construction, she represents the enduring quality and character of a traditional blue water yacht. This yacht has been actively cruised and carefully maintained by her curre...
