About this boat

In 2003, when Corsair Marine had already built over 1250 of her Ian Farrier designed F-27, F24 and F31 trimarans, they wanted to extend their fleet with a trailerable 36' trimaran that combined the seagoing range of a keelyacht with the stability of a catamaran and the sensational performance of a racer. The use of the most modern materials and building methods helped to restrict the empty weight to well below 3000kg. "Lafi Bala" was kept most of her recent years inside a dry shed and was used only between June and the end of August for family trips to the Baltic sea. The yacht is now offered in good condition with recent equipment, 20 Hp outboard, inflatable and a 25 km/h trailer in central Netherlands. Only t...
